HONGKONG, 4TH OCTOBER, 1881.

THE compilation of a few statistical and other particulars, recently published in pamphlet form by Mr. R. G. Alford, under the title, "A Report on the Best Motive Power for Street Tramways in the East," is an exceedingly feeble attempt at professional authorship. Mr. Alford is one of the professional gentlemen connected with the proposed Hongkong Tramways Company, but whether he holds his position as a representative of the proposal favoured by the Hon. F. Bulkeley Johnson, or as an advocate and adherent of that other scheme which, in spite of the bombastic eloquence of the Hon. Ng Choy strongly favouring independent opposition, was so remorselessly nipped in the bud, we are unable to state authoritatively. We have, however, the authority of the Daily Press for asserting that the claims of the professional gentlemen who had differed so greatly when in opposition were satisfactorily adjusted after the amalgamation of conflicting interests, so that Mr. Alford's official connection with the Tramway Company may safely be taken for granted. Mr. Alford, who is an Assoc. M. Inst., C.E., is also Agent in China for the Beaumont Compressed Air Locomotive Company, Limited. Possibly Mr. R. G. Alford had some aim in view when he published, ostensibly for the information of the public, a few extracts from letters and newspapers in the form of a report bearing on the subject of motive powers for street tramways, although we must own that we do not care to admit that the object of publication is altogether self-evident. As agent for the Beaumont Compressed Air Locomotive Company, Limited, Mr. Alford's motive in completely extinguishing, on paper, the claims of the steel wire rope, steam engine, and pneumatic car and engine combined systems is perfectly comprehensible; but it is difficult to understand on what grounds, either as Agent for the Compressed Air Company or as surveyor or engineer for the proposed Tramways Company, he should have so thoroughly demolished the prospects, so far as Hongkong is concerned, of his own

Agency, and so clearly, although unwittingly, demonstrated that pony traction is the only possible motive power for our proposed tramways, which may practically be taken to mean that the whole scheme is as impracticable from a business point of view as it is unnecessary for the requirements of the colony.

According to Mr. Alford, the subject of the motive power best fitted for the working of tramways is one which is now occupying much attention in England, where the employment of mechanical power in place of horse traction is as yet a novelty. As a matter of fact, steam tramways have been running for some considerable time in several large towns in the United Kingdom, such as Bristol, Leeds, Glasgow, and Edinburgh, and they have not achieved, either as a financial speculation or as a boon to the public, anything like the success that was anticipated. They are exceedingly expensive in running, and altogether unsuited for the crowded thoroughfares of populous cities. When enquiries from Hongkong were first instituted a year ago, friends from various parts of the world are said to have warned the inquirers against horse traction. In Bombay it appears the horses used in the cars wear sun-hats; but even this protection does not prevent some of them from dying, and in Batavia the same result has obtained. We are not acquainted with the conditions of tramway work either in Bombay or Batavia, but we do know that in England, where the work it may be noted is twice as severe as would be the case in Hongkong, the horses occasionally die from over exertion as well as from the other ills to which horse flesh is heir to, and nothing else could be looked for. In the face of the practical experience for many years of the Metropolitan Tramway Companies, Mr. Alford's assertion, on the authority of some one whose name is not given, that "the employment of horses on tramways is a misfit and a barbarism" is simply childish, and what are supposed to be his arguments against pony traction for the proposed Hongkong line are really not worth alluding to.

The following passage is amusing if nothing else; and we reproduce it for the purpose of showing the public what we must frankly own is to us quite a new style of scientific argument:—

Some interesting calculations have lately been made on this subject by a gentleman in Hongkong, from which he argues that if resistance both to starting and traction be so great the expense of providing the power for carriage of passengers per head will be greater on any kind of tramways than can be provided by coolie labour in the drawing of jinrikshaws. The latter vehicles are now run for Chinese at a speed of 7 or 8 miles an hour for a charge of 5 cents for 2 miles, or 1½d. per mile per head. There being no other charge contingent but the cost of the vehicle and its licence (which is very small), this sum represents little more than the cost of traction only. But as the average number of passengers per mile anticipated for our Hongkong tramcars is 7 (according to home rule in large towns), and the expense of traction 5d. to 6d. per mile for horses (when owned) and 3d. or 4d. per mile for steam or compressed air locomotives (when purchased), the cost per head may by mechanical appliances be made almost one-half that of the 'rickshaws; for 7 persons are carried in a tramcar for 3d. to 4d. a mile, or say 3d. each, against one in a jinrikshaw for 1½d. Nevertheless, the comparison is not an uninteresting one, the cheapness of coolie labour introducing in China a feature not found in European countries.

The seven-passengers per mile anticipated for our Hongkong tramcars, and the ridiculous and altogether unsupported assertion that the cost of running by mechanical appliances can be made almost one half of that of 'rickshaws, will only provoke a smile from those who have the slightest practical acquaintance with the subject. Again what will any sensible person think of the following paragraph:—

"It is calculated that our proposed Tramways (3.57 miles long) in Hongkong from end to end of the town will cost $45,901 per annum to work with compressed air locomotives against probable gross returns of $64,415. These engines when purchased are run at four pence per mile against sixpence three farthings for horses, and as it is highly probable that our Hongkong tram will be a losing concern if we use the animal power, the question is far more important here than at home."

It would be interesting to know on what basis the "probable gross returns of $64,415 per annum" are made out; however, Mr. Alford may rest assured on one point, and that is, that with compressed air locomotives, equally with pony-traction, the Hongkong trams cannot fail to prove a losing concern.

It would only be waste of time wading through the whole of Mr. Alford's extracts, nor would it serve any useful end to detail how he smashes up, to his own apparent satisfaction, all the proposed systems excepting the one he is agent for. Full particulars of the advantages over other systems claimed by Beaumont's Pacumatic Locomotives are set out at length in the report, but we need only deal with the expense of this particular motive power. As Mr. Alford fairly enough puts it, "are we sufficiently assured of the success of this invention to spend some $33,000 to $40,000 on providing engines of this type for our line?" The engines cost about £450 each, but a steam compressor suitable to charge eight or ten engines costs £2,150. The estimate of annual expenditure given is totally unreliable, as applied to Hongkong, and to quote it would only mislead. Mr. Alford considers that any comment from him on the information given in his report unnecessary. We think so too, although it does seem passing strange that an expert, officially connected with our tramway project, should decline to give his own opinion on a question of so much importance and with which he ought to be so well acquainted. We shall have faith in tramways for our colony when we see them; until then we are contented to be classed as non-believers.

THE restrictions which retard the development of mineral industry in China, and the action of the Chinese Government in regard to the recently announced mineral discoveries at Foochow, have created some measure of indignation in those new countries where celestial immigration is viewed unfavourably and concessions of equivalent rights and privileges to the yellow race is disputed by the white population. The argument adduced in the countries adverted to apparently upsets, to some extent, the international law theory upon which the question hinged—at least, in respect to mining; for it is contested that Chinamen can neither claim nor expect in a foreign country a privilege from which they are debarred in their own native land. This is, admittedly, a principle of equity, but, to our view, it requires strong support, by fact and reason, before it can be utilised or practised. Briefly and finally—Does the privilege wanted detrimentally affect the interests of those who have to grant it? We will leave the discussion of the various aspects of this problem for solution for some future occasion.

THE principle which guides some of our local money-changers could not, perhaps, be better illustrated than by the following bona fide occurrence yesterday. A gentleman tendering a rupee for an article for which two shillings was wanted, was surprised to find his offer rejected, and a florin accepted without demur. An explanation revealed the strange fact that the rupee would only realize 44 cents, while the florin would be good for 50 cents at the adjoining money-changing stall, where a reference was made to solve the difficulty. The scales were called into requisition, and the rupee outweighed the florin. The Chinaman was equal to the occasion, and ascribed the depreciation of the Indian coin to an inferior standard of silver. The rupee, it may be mentioned, weighs exactly 180 grains, and is coined with the same proportions of fine silver (37) and alloy (3) as the moneys issued from the Royal Mint.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

We are informed by the Superintendent of the Eastern Extension Telegraph Company that the French mail steamer Sindhi passed Cape St. James at 2.30 this morning.

Telegrams from the north of Africa state that the Arabs have twice defeated the Tunisians, capturing their artillery. The French reinforcements amounting to 30,000 men, recently despatched to the seat of war should soon make their influence felt in this miserable business.

The boisterous weather has rather upset Dock arrangements. The Hungarian has been prevented from going to Aberdeen, but will dock, weather permitting, this evening. The Cascapedia is detained in the Cosmopolitan Dock, but is expected to get out this afternoon. The German barque Flora and the American barque William Hales are both booked, the one for Sam-shui-po, and the other for Kowloon, as soon as the gale moderates.

There would appear to be a good deal of difficulty in the settlement of the Anglo-French Treaty of Commerce. The British Government have at last made a definite resolve not to accede to the one-sided proposals of the French, and the stand they have taken has received the unanimous approval of the Press. A late telegram informs us that there has been another hitch in the negotiations, and in consequence the English delegates have returned to London to confer with the Government.

We hear that the case of Thirkell v. Pickwood, which promised to be interesting, has been arranged to the satisfaction of the plaintiff, so that we shall hear nothing of it in Court. Mrs. Pickwood pays to the plaintiff Taels 400 in settlement of his claim (of Tls. 462) and costs, and gives him a certificate that he has borne a good character while he has been in the office of the North-China Daily News; and that for 18 months he was in charge of the Editorial department of that paper.—Courier.

Sportsmen had a good time of it at the usual shooting grounds on the Canton River on Sunday last. One party of four, who patronised the vicinity of Deep Bay, bagged forty-two brace of snipe, besides a quantity of other birds, which must be considered a very satisfactory forenoon's work. At Castle Peak equally gratifying results were obtained, and it would appear that the snipe are more plentiful this season than has been the case for years. The shooting in the neighbourhood of Macao has also been first-class, but the excessive heat has proved a great drawback.

We understand that Captain Hopkins of the steamship Rajawattianukhar has been so much upset at our remarks referring to the repairs required by his vessel, that he has been vowing vengeance against us in grand style. We would recommend the worthy old gentleman to "keep his breath to cool his parrot with," as his rabid utterances are quite lost on us. The insignificant little craft with the long name is really not worth the attention the press has already bestowed on her, and had we not considered it necessary to show up the so-called "enterprise" of our local contemporaries, we should have allowed both steamer and skipper to "bloom unseen and waste their fragrance" in the wilds of Sam-shui-po. Since penning the above we hear that the Rajawattianukhar broke adrift from her moorings during the gale of yesterday, but fortunately sustained no damage. Some vessels appear to be constructed to become famous. This old box is one of them.

Troubles in Ireland would appear to be on the increase. We now learn by telegram from London, dated October 2nd, that rioting continues throughout the country.

The duties which an independent newspaper owe to the public are too obvious to require detailed mention. As representatives of public opinion heavy responsibilities devolve on the Press, to such an extent that the success and status of a journal may generally be fairly gauged by the confidence placed in its honour, impartiality, and good faith in fearlessly discharging the various duties which its constituency have a right to expect. The difficulties which beset the editor of a newspaper in this part of the world are occasionally of a very trying character. Items of news are occasionally furnished by outsiders for improper purposes; items which may be of sufficient general interest to warrant publication, but which the editor has no opportunity of verifying. This leads to one of the press abuses for which Hongkong has earned an unenviable notoriety. It is a frequent occurrence that the editorial columns of our local journals are made a medium by contemptible rascals for the gratification of mean petty spite. An instance of this has come under our notice in connection with our morning contemporary, the Daily Press, which we think will meet with general reprobation. In yesterday's issue appears the following paragraph:—

"From Macao we hear that still another appeal, this time to Lisbon, has been taken in the Do Cerceal case, which is therefore as far off a settlement as ever; the question which now presents itself is, whether, when all these protracted legal proceedings are terminated, there will be anything left to dispute about."

With reference to the above we are justified in stating that the first portion of the paragraph "From Macao we hear, &c." is a gross and scandalous perversion of truth. We ask the public, we ask the editor of the Daily Press to believe that the supposed news from Macao was written out of petty spite in Hongkong by a person who had previously threatened openly that he would use his influence in this way for anything but commendable purposes. The author of the paragraph wrote a previous one on the same subject about ten days ago, and afterwards stated that he had inserted although he knew it was untrue. Now, as a matter of fact, the decision of the Goa Tribunal was appealed against many weeks ago, but this appeal does not in any way affect the decree already given. So much for the value of the matter supplied by our contemporary's special contributor, who by the way, claims to be a well paid member of the staff. We do not expect much chivalry from the Daily Press; but we do think that the columns of a respectable public journal should be kept clear from contemptible and malicious attacks against a defenceless woman. If the editor of our contemporary desires confirmation of the above charges we shall be glad to favour him with full particulars. If the author of the paragraph visits this office we can promise him a warm reception.

FATAL ACCIDENT AT MURRAY BARRACKS.

We regret to have to record a fatal accident which occurred at Murray Barracks this morning. About half-past seven the roof of the Sergeants' Mess fell in with a great crash, instantaneously killing one coolie and injuring another. The cause of the accident would appear to have been the subsidence of a chimney, which, we understand, has been gradually and perceptibly falling in for some considerable time past. As it is the duty of the Royal Engineers to see that these buildings are kept in thorough repair, we cannot understand why a glaring instance like this could have been so neglected. It would be wise, we think, if the officers of the R.E. would see that their subordinates attended to more important matters than wasting valuable time, which might be much better employed, in attending to useless bathing ponds which are constantly out of repair. The serious nature of the accident at Murray Barracks must not be judged altogether by actual results. That we have not to deplore the loss of a large number of men, instead of one coolie, is merely a lucky chance. Had the roof fallen in a little later in the day, when the mess-rooms and canteen were open, the whole of the occupants of the building would most certainly have been killed or seriously injured. An inquest will be held to-morrow on the body of the unfortunate man who has lost his life, when it is to be hoped that the whole circumstances connected with the case will be closely inquired into.

THE NORTH-CHINA INSURANCE COMPANY.

The following is the Report for presentation at the seventh ordinary meeting of the shareholders, to be held at the offices of the Company, Shanghai, on Wednesday, the 12th instant, at 2.30 p.m.:

The directors have pleasure in presenting to the shareholders their report together with the audited accounts and balance sheet of the company for the half-year ended 30th June, 1881.

1880.—Since the date of the last meeting the dividends then sanctioned have been paid, viz., Tls. 75 per share = Tls. 75,000, and 25 per cent. return to the contributing shareholders = Tls. 275,813.92. The balance to the credit of this year as shown by the annexed accounts is Tls. 66,800.94, payments of claims since the 30th June amount to Tls. 11,304.72, leaving Tls. 55,496.22 representing the undivided profits, and it is hoped that salvages to be received will be sufficient to meet any further claims which may arise.

The directors propose, with the concurrence of the shareholders, to close the accounts for 1880 as soon as practicable, and would recommend that, of the sum then found available, one-third be placed to credit of the reserve fund and the remaining two-thirds be distributed as an additional bonus return in proportion to the premia contributed by the respective shareholders.

1881.—The business for the half-year under review is considered satisfactory, there being a balance to be carried forward from the working account of Tls. 413,688.18 to the credit of the Company.

RESERVE FUND.

The amount of this fund, it will be noticed, now stands at Tls. 238,600, after crediting it with Tls. 60,000 in accordance with the resolution passed at the last meeting.

DIRECTORS.

Mr. David Brand and Mr. A. G. Wood have been elected members of the court in the place of Mr. William Brand and Mr. A. McLeod resigned, which appointments require the confirmation of the shareholders.

HEAD OFFICE PREMISES.

The lease of the Company's premises having expired and renewal of the same being found impracticable, it was deemed expedient to secure the property by purchase, which it is hoped will meet with the approval of the shareholders; the cost thereof will appear in the accounts for the current half-year.

By order of the Court of Directors,
HERBERT S. MORRIS, Secretary.

FIGHT WITH PIRATES NEAR NINGPO.

The Ningpo correspondent of the Shanghai Mercury, writing recently to that journal, tells of a fight with a desperate band of pirates in which several lives were lost, including the captain of the Imperial gunboat Cha-wo. These frays are happily of rare occurrence in the present decade, but the story plainly shows that the spirit which was rampant in the days of Messrs. Mah-chow Wong, Sam Kwei, Eli Boggs & Co., many years ago in the South, still remains, if only in remnant form, in the North:—

NINGPO, 27th September.

In my last I wrote you that a certain pirate Wang or chief had been making his presence unpleasantly felt in our neighbourhood recently, and I now write to report that the Chinese rain gun-vessel Cha-wo, together with several other gunboats and mandarin junks, have been engaged with these pirates, between the 1st and 25th instant, at and round about Tai-chow Bay; most of the fighting had to be done in boats as the water was so shallow. The gunboats lost about twelve men, they say, but, as usual, have, of course, killed scores of the pirates, from all accounts.

We very much regret that the gallant commander of the Cha-wo lost his life whilst pursuing the brigands to their fastnesses on land. His body, which had been lying in the long-boat of the Cha-wo for eleven days, was brought up to town this afternoon, and the Customs flag was lowered to half-mast. Captain Yeep-foo was a Cantonese, spoke English very well, and was much liked by all, both foreigners and natives, who know him here. The pirate chief is reported by two of his prisoners to have been wounded by a ball in the chin and knee. The Cha-wo and Yuen-kai have returned (not having completed their task at all) for reinforcements we must suppose, as they can hardly have run short of ammunition. It is a great pity, and I think a shame too, for them not to be able to polish off this ruffian and his band. There are not a few idle but bold hands in Shanghai who would, doubtless, be glad to have a brush with this gentleman for much less than $5,000. The Owa-Hsing has not returned yet.

THE VICEROY OF INDIA.

The Weekly Register of August 13th gives an appreciative and authentic sketch of the Marquis of Ripon's career, the writer showing in many of its details a thorough acquaintance with his subject. This periodical, which now ranks as the organ of the Roman Catholic laity, has evidently come under the direction of an editor who must command the confidence of the influential classes of the community whose views he upholds, for there is a spirit of enterprise and improvement now visible in every page, while it is said that many of the contributions are from the pen of Cardinal Manning. The writer gives an account of Lord Ripon's family, and mentions that he is a descendant of John Hampden on his mother's side, and of Oliver Cromwell on his father's, the boy finding, nevertheless, a godfather in George IV., after whom he was named:—

"The future Viceroy never went to school, but educated himself with the aid of tutors. A great reader, he has had the regret in taking office of necessarily curtailing the time once devoted to books. His mind early took a political bias, and he found his way into public life in 1849 as attaché to Sir Henry Ellis's special mission to Brussels. Three years later he entered Parliament for Hull as an advanced Liberal, and afterwards sat for Huddersfield and for the West Riding of Yorkshire. He first distinguished himself by the admirable manner in which he organised the Volunteer movement when Under-Secretary for War, under Lord Palmerston. Afterwards, while Secretary of State for India, he did equally good work, and gained experience of enormous value to him in the post he now holds. He served as President of the Council in Mr. Gladstone's Administration from 1868 to 1873. Lord Ripon's mission to Washington on the Alabama dispute during that period will be well remembered. It was not thought at the moment that the bargain struck with the United States Government was one very favourable to this country, but, as time has proved, is has bound England and America together in bonds of amity, which a pact more flattering to ourselves might have failed to do. Lord Ripon, though the heir to splendid titles and broad lands, was always proud of his position as a representative of the people; and when he was summoned to the Upper House as Earl of Ripon on the death of his father in 1859, he playfully complained that he had been disfranchised. In the same year he succeeded his uncle as Earl de Grey, and bore the double title of Earl de Grey and Ripon till he earned his Marquisate in 1871. At that date he had been married exactly twenty years—his wife being Henrietta, eldest daughter of the late Mr. Henry Vyner. While in office Lord Ripon has been not a little aided in making his party popular by Lady Ripon, who was always a favourite with society, and few recent receptions have been more crowded with sympathetic guests than hers."

The fact that women who wed once and who are widowed are apt to wed again, only proves the force and the evil of habit.

LATEST COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE.

Tuesday, October 4th, 1881.
One o'clock p.m.

A fair amount of small transactions have been recorded since we last wrote, although no movements of importance have yet taken place. There was a slight run on Docks yesterday afternoon, and they jumped, after sales at 42 per cent. premium, to 45, a number of shares changing hands at the last-named rate. However, buyers were soon tired out and the stock closed very weak with plenty of sellers at 44. So far as we have been able to ascertain, there has been no business done this morning. Chinese Insurance showed rather better buyers offering 305, without, however, inducing holders to sell. We traced one small lot of Hongkong Fires which changed hands at 975, and we quote this as the closing rate. Business to a very small extent was also done this morning in China Fires at the old rate, 285 per share. Steamboats and Banks have not been enquired about; but Hotels are in demand at 113, and we fancy business may be arranged this afternoon at a slight advance on that rate. Sugars have been dabbled in at 160 per share, but there are still sellers who would be glad to close if offers were forthcoming. Other information will be found in appendal list of quotations, corrected up to time of going to press.
